Christopher Atwell
Class of 1980

Dear Graduates,

In many ways we are victims of the forces which swirl about us and determine the conditions of our existence. The action of OPEC oil ministers, halfway around the globe, in raising their prices to astronomical levels, for example, has played havoc with our economy and affected the lives of every American. The seizure of hostages in Teheran has had repercussions in Texas, Maine, Florida, and Oregon. The spurt of gold to record levels, an early frost which destroys fruits and vegetable crops, the poisoning of our environment by chemicals — all of those events over which we as individuals have virtually no control contribute to a feeling of helplessness and frustration.

For almost every catastrophic setback, however, men and women have been able to find ways to overcome, to set things right. Better information about diet and blood pressure has contributed to a lowering of the death rate from heart attacks and strokes; government intervention has helped to identify carcinogens and to remove cancer inducing situations from our environment; diplomacy and patience have been used to settle irreconcilable differences between nations. Although the disaster list is a lengthy one, we must not be so hypnotized by it that we fail to acknowledge the successes of our people.

Now you are going to have your chance to come to grips with the more weighty problems of the world which lie outside the high school community. For most, it will be the college campus and serious strides toward a career. For others, it will be business, marriage, or the armed services. Wherever you are, it's important to remember that you need not be a total victim. There is action you can take to remedy society's ills if you have the willpower and the brainpower to take such positive steps.

Your teachers and I are rooting for you to be active in shaping a better destiny for yourself and your fellow Americans.

Cordially,

Murray Bromberg
Principal

Mr. S. Friedberg — Administrative Assistant

Guidance Counselors

Guidance services are one way in which a large city high school can provide a more personal experience. Part of the task of the counselor is to make students aware of existing programs which may help to develop special talents. Counseling services also provide a means by which students can overcome weaknesses of both an academic and emotional nature.

Counselors are an integral part of funded programs such as College Bound, the Spark Program and Title I Remediation Program. An opportunity to discuss individual needs and interests arms Jacksonites with insights and, most important, a sense that concerned school staff can truly assist students in planning for the future.

College Bound

Andrew Jackson is very proud of its College Bound Program which, now in its thirteenth year, has graduated over one thousand students. Every year over 90% of our students enter college. There have been many changes during the years, but the basic blueprint for success is still there — a group of inspired adults leading some hardworking students into a bright college future.

Jackson Academy

The Academy, Jackson's alternative school-within-a-school, seeks to create an atmosphere of trust and friendship while maintaining rigorous academic standards. The course offerings are varied and stimulating: Physiology, Anthropology, Literature of the Holocaust, Psychology and Star Worlds, as well as Reading and Remedial Math. Well over 80% of its graduates have gone on to college. A sampling of their careers: restaurateur, broadcaster, computer programmer, commercial artist, dancer, accountant, art teacher, graduate school; one ex-Academician runs a horse ranch in Wyoming. The philosophy of the Academy might best be summed up in the words of George Kaviar: "There is more than one path to success in life. What really matters is having a meaningful life." In this spirit, the Academy sets out to place learning in the framework of human values. It accomplishes this through its emphasis on cooperation and on content as well as skills.

Pioneer Law Program

The Pioneer Law School has about 175 youngsters from freshmen to seniors. Topics relating to law are part of the curriculum in General Science, Social Studies, and English. In part, the philosophy behind the program is that citizens need to know about the law so that they can deal effectively with legal questions that confront them. As students become seniors, they often become part of internship programs where they gain first hand knowledge about our legal systems. As a result of the law program, many students have decided to seek careers in the field of law.

Library Media Center

Our bright and cheerful Library Media Center is an arena for that last minute bout with an assignment; the place to become immersed in a book or film and a place for an exchange of ideas and research. It is also a job training center. Squad members have found jobs as clerks in public libraries. These are but some of the ways that Jacksonites develop the library habit which insures a lifetime of learning and growth.

Mrs. J. McLeveigh assists one of our Jacksonites.

Program Office

The Program Office is the heart of the school. The number of classes programmed has to fit the needs of the students. Exam scheduling, proctoring, room assignments, etc., are done here. Innumerable reports have to be carefully prepared. Programs are changed to accommodate students' needs whenever possible.

Mr. J. Yucht — Coordinator

Mrs. H. Simone

Mr. S. Altschuler

Attendance Office

The Attendance Office is one of the busiest offices in the school. Not only are the attendance and official room records kept there, but also parents are contacted regarding absences; admissions, discharges and class-to-class changes are processed; and inquiries from students, teachers, deans and counselors are handled daily.

The Supportive Services Program

The Supportive Services Counselor, Mr. Krackow, and his two family assistants comprise the Supportive Services team. Their function is to lend support to the Title I M.S.L. and Reading teachers in their efforts to provide remediation to students whose standardized scores indicate the need for skills improvement in these two important areas. The counselor concerns himself with those students referred by Title I teachers as not benefiting from these classes for any of a variety of reasons. He is aided in this by the family assistants, who establish contact with parents and enlist their cooperation. An additional Supportive Services counselor, Mrs. Gross, works exclusively with the students in the Low Stress Math classes.

Mr. J. Regan — Assistant Principal

College Office

The College Office is one of the most important offices functioning at Andrew Jackson today. The office is run by Mrs. Myrtle Hamilton with the assistance of Mrs. Shirley Richard, who also runs the Honors Program, and the College Office staff which consists of selected Andrew Jackson students. Mrs. Hamilton advises juniors and seniors about their post-secondary choices. She has the responsibility of informing students about the various ways to apply financial aid and college scholarships. The College Office is extremely important because of the valuable work being done on behalf of the juniors and seniors of Andrew Jackson High School.

English

The English Department of Andrew Jackson High School has set itself one major goal: to give all students the basic knowledge necessary for success in the area of communication. Whatever career you choose, wherever you find yourselves, you will need to understand, listen to, read, discuss and judge ideas and events. The more clearly and forcefully you can express yourselves, the greater will be your chances to move ahead. That is why we spent time and effort in your English classes on building your vocabulary, improving your writing and challenging your minds with a variety of books. We hope your achievements at Jackson will be a beginning to develop your language capabilities further, to grow in your appreciation of the spoken and the written word, and to strengthen your resolve to succeed in the world that now lies ahead of you.

Social Studies

A wise historian once said, "If you want to understand the present, and know the future, then seek out the past." With this in mind, our courses aim to prepare students to live more productive lives. In class, different points of view are presented, and students are encouraged to develop critical thinking in order to distinguish fact from opinion. A strong effort is made to improve such skills as reading, writing, listening, and speaking before a group. Students are encouraged to do research into various issues. The heritage of the past is brought into the classroom so that students are able to focus upon many of the complex problems in the world today.

Mathematics

The Department of Mathematics aims to meet the needs of all students, those who are gifted as well as those who need special help to qualify for a high school diploma. Thus at one end of the spectrum, students can take LSM which strengthens their arithmetic skills as a preparation for the formal algebra course and at the other end, the talented students can elect the equivalent of a college course in calculus enabling them to receive advanced standing at the college which they will attend after graduation.

Science

Students who have been taking Regents Biology 3 in the Fall term in recent years have been learning what it is like to leave for school in the dark of morning to arrive at their once-a-week laboratory class at 7:30 am. Ours is one of the few public high schools in the city which offers an extra sixth period for laboratory work to students taking Regents Biology. The problem of where to fit in this extra period in the limited schedule of a 1-8 period day was solved by having the class in a zero period before the rest of the school begins. This program must be working because last June 1979, 85% of the students taking this course passed the always difficult Regents. This was one of the best scores for any high school in Queens.

The motto of the foreign Language Department is "Language Is Communication". Like a book, learning a language, another tongue can open up the entire world to a student. Teachers in this department are committed to giving a language experience to every student. This includes the basic skills of reading, writing, and speaking and an appreciation of the cultures of other people throughout the world.
